

Photo by Layne Kennedy

We study wildlife populations and their relationships with their physical and living environment to identify what might cause the populations to increase or decrease. We apply these research findings to help endangered species' populations to increase.

Dr. Joseph Wunderle
Wildlife Ecologist/
Conservation Biologist
Ph.D., University of Minnesota
USDA Forest Service scientist