

Some fire scientists study how good fires help improve the quality of water in forest streams.